

WEB SITE REPORT 2017

The site continues to be updated with all the events going on `in and around` the village.

The running of the web programme was taken over by a different company during the year and there is now a small annual charge for being part of `one suffolk`, which was paid for by the Parish Council.

It may be that in the coming years, someone could be found to host the site for free as there are a number of people with those skills who live in the village. Food for thought perhaps?

The village Facebook page has now been taken over by Sarah Rands, she is an expert on Facebook and plans to re-invigorate it and create more interest.

Facebook is the medium now more used by the younger element of the village, with their whole lives intertwined with other friends, so any information has a very wide audience. This leaves the website as a useful resource for general information ie, dates / times etc.. Still relevant but not the only way to get information across.

Any suggestions regarding improving the look of the website will always be gratefully received.
